

DEAF MUTES LOVE IS COLD.*WIFE SAYS HER RICH HUSBAND IS DEVOTED TO ANOTHER MUSE.

Whom she once Order'd from Her House, and that He Lashes Gifts on Her While, His Family Is Straitened—He Says He loves His Wife and seeks Edification.

David Henry Haught left a large part of his estate, which is estimated at $1,500,000, to his deaf mute son, Henry Jenson Haught, whose deaf wife, Mary L., is suing him for a separation. The case was before Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court yesterday. Haught married the plaintiff on Nov. 18, 1869. She charges him with abandonment and declares that he has transferred his affections to another deaf mute, Jessie H. Stanton, for whom he has spent money lavishly. Charles G. Bennett represents Mrs. Haught and Augustus Van Wyk appears for Haught. Prof. Weston Jenkins acted as intercessor, and the trial necessarily progressed slowly.

Mrs. Haught declares that since the death of her husband's mother in 1865 he has come in for the entire income of the estate of his father, and has gradually been neglecting her for Miss Stanton. He is a resident at 124 West Ninety-first street and a large country residence at Goshen. In these places they had formerly lived at much expense with their three sons. David, 24 years ago, left his wife, Eliza, & son, and his acquaintance with Miss Stanton, the wife says, Haught has taken the family to inferior boarding houses and hotels. Late last summer he gave her $125 a month for the support of the family and $50 a month for the rent of an apartment for them. She found the advance inadequate and her services were demanded for her decent and is liable to be dispossessed. She says further that she has lent her husband money of her own which she has been unable to get back from him.

Mrs. Haught further declared that since 1865, when Haught took Miss Stanton for a tour in Europe, she has not been given there the same attention as a daughter, and that she has no place to go except to the church before the eyes of persons from the different localities before the State Railroad Commission at Borough Hall on Saturday.

TROLLEY CHANGES IN BROOKLYN.*Bridge Traffic to Be Relieved by Better Service to the Ferries.

After a consultation between President Fairchild of the Union Ferry Company and President Bossier of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company it was announced yesterday that beginning with Monday next a new route will be instituted over the Gates avenue division of the trolley lines to and from the South Ferry. The line will be operated during the rush hours only and it will run from Summer avenue and through Gates avenue to Fulton street and then across Avenue A to the Ferry, according to the schedule, will connect with every boat. On the same day there will be increased traffic on the Ferry.

Under the new system it is thought that many people can be induced to use the ferries who now come over the bridge. Increased traffic on the Ferry will bring Hamlet from Fort Hamilton and to South Ferry on the Seventh avenue line.

Sir Harry Stanley, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee, has organized to protest against the traffic changes made by President Bossier three weeks ago, issued a general circular to all the citizens of Brooklyn, citizens and delegates from public bodies in Kings county, to be held to-night at 201 Montague street, Brooklyn, principally for the purpose of getting the views of persons from the different localities before the State Railroad Commission at Borough Hall on Saturday.
